

A Few Interesting Pictures From Far and Near

CLAIMS HE CAN MAKE DIAMONDS.

PROFESSOR MOISSON.

The scientific world is greatly interested in the claims of Professor Moisson, the learned Frenchman who asserts that he is able to manufacture diamonds in an electric furnace of his invention. The process, according to M. Moisson, who is shown at work at his diamond making furnace, takes from six to eight weeks, tremendous pressure being applied to the raw material, which is withdrawn at white heat from the crucible. It is then found that the mass, which has assumed a grayish color, contains a particle said to be a diamond. Charles Combes, the well known French mining engineer, is foremost among those who ridicule the professor's claims. The small circles in the picture contain figures of the so called diamond crystals.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CLIFF DWELLERS.

Those who believe that the age of the cliff dwellers is really at an end will be speedily undeceived if they pay a visit to the strange Italian village of San Stephano, of which a view is given by the accompanying illustration. This village is situated on the southern shore of the lake of Bolsena, and a visitor to the underground dwellings of the inhabitants says that the cottages are surprisingly neat and comfortable. They are all cut out of solid rock, and the chimneys and openings seen in the picture are chiefly of use as means of ventilation. There are very few windows, and most of the rooms are in utter darkness with the exception of those in the front of the houses, receiving light from the doors. The people of San Stephano are an old lot, evidently descendants of the ancient Etruscans. Just why their ancestors chose to settle about the great crater lake cannot be determined with any accuracy.

AN ELEVENTH CENTURY CHURCH.

Tourists who are interested in ancient churches will find much to arouse their curiosity in the tumble down structure shown in the accompanying illustration. This is an eleventh century edifice in Kent, England, and is known as Grayne church. In the background may be seen tombstones, many of which are almost as old as the church itself and bear epitaphs which are decidedly original and unique, although covered over and almost undecipherable from the deposits of the years.

THIS BEATS THE LOOP THE LOOP.

Berlin, the home of so many sensational novelties in the circus line, now contains another aspirant to nerve racking honors. M. Eclair, who is to be seen in the illustration perched in a very dizzy position, recently gave a public demonstration of his ability to navigate what he is pleased to term "the jumping motorcycle track." Strapped in a big hoop, the rims of which fitted the inner rims of the circular track, he was propelled from a height of fifty feet, his hoop making the circuit of the track at a speed of about fifty-five feet per second, and then ran into a mattress placed in position to receive it. Just how Eclair felt after landing in a heap on the mattress it is impossible to say, but it is evident he enjoyed the trip, for he threatens to make it a regular thing in connection with a circus.

HEAD OF SWISS ART GUILD.

It is not generally known that there is a very active school of good Swiss painters, just as there is a Dutch school, a French school, etc. More than this, there is in the ancient city of Neuchatel an art guild the members of which turn out beautiful and costly specimens of glass mosaic work, stained glass, enameled copper falence, cloisonne hand decorated wall coverings in relief, marquetry and gesso work. This guild was founded ten years ago by Clement Heaton, whose latest portrait is here-with reproduced. Mr. Heaton is an artist who was induced to start at Neuchatel an art productive atelier training students in various forms of artistic decorative work. Mr. Heaton is a master craftsman, and his "guild" has already won many honors, while its wares command high prices. Mr. Heaton's father was a well known decorator and a designer of stained glass in England.

Sweden and Denmark have no soldiers who cannot read and write. In Russia's army 70 per cent of the men are illiterate.

THE LARGEST STORE IN THE WORLD.

The store which holds the honor of now being the largest in the world is located in the famous Russian city of Moscow, and the illustration will give a fair idea of its proportions. It covers twenty acres of ground and embraces no fewer than 1,000 business establishments, where thousands of merchants may be seen daily disposing of their wares. It is said that this gigantic bazaar cost $10,000,000 to construct.

REFORMATION OF AN OPIUM SMUGGLING SHIP.

There are few who would recognize in the old ship known as the Seattle Wayside mission the one time notorious opium smuggling vessel Idaho, which for years plied along the Pacific coast engaged in the nefarious traffic. When her days of usefulness came to an end she was tied up at a wharf in Seattle, where she remained until a physician strolling along the docks had the happy thought of utilizing her for a water front dispensary. Out of this idea grew the Wayside mission, where many of the sick and suffering of Seattle's nether world have received kindly treatment. By a strange coincidence, a large number of the patients have been "opium fiends," some of whom doubtless contracted the habit from the drugs which the old vessel carried to the city when she was in commission.

THE TOMB OF A GREAT POET.

The accompanying illustration shows the tomb of Persia's famous poet, Saadi, who died in 1291 at the age of 162. Saadi studied at Bagdad, became a dervish, traveled in India and Egypt and fought against the crusaders in Syria. He was an excellent linguist and a scientist of no mean order. For many years he led the life of a hermit at Shiraz.

Like a Comet
This famous remedy does for the stomach what which it is unable to do for itself, even if but slightly disordered or overburdened.

Kodol
supplies the natural juices of digestion and does the work of the stomach, relaxing the nervous tension, while the inflamed muscles and membranes of that organ are allowed to rest and heal. It cures indigestion, flatulence, palpitation of the heart, nervous dyspepsia and all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying and strengthening the glands, membranes of the stomach and digestive organs.
